Corner of York and Hanover Sts.

HIGH SCHOOL DEDICATION

DR. BILLHEIMER TELLS OF THE WORK OF ERECTION

Dr. N. C. Schaeffer Delivers a Stirring Address on Truth as the end of all Education

The Gettysburg High School building at the forks of Hanover and York streets was appropriately dedicated on Wednesday evening, May 12. The exercises were held in the large room of the building and was comfortably filled. Edward M. Bender, President of the School Board, presided.

The High School Mandolin and Guitar Club opened the program with a selection. This club possesses much musical talent which has been effectively developed and their playing delighted the audience. Rev. J. A. Clutz D.D., made the opening prayer and the Mandolin and Guitar Club followed with another selection.

Dr. T. C. Billheimer made a short address, telling of the history of the building of the new High School. He told how three years ago the School Board found all the schools crowded, that rooms were taxed to their capacity, that desks were crowded into rooms and other features of the school rooms were sacrificed. That the Board did not act hurriedly but took over a year to deliberate upon the situation and considered a number of ways to solve the matter, none of which were practicable because too expensive. That the only solution was to build a new building which had finally been resolved upon. That when the plans and specifications had been received these had to be gone over and over in order to bring them within the debt incurring capacity of the Board, but finally this was accomplished. He complimented the town on having an intelligent, high, efficient and courageous Board of Directors, men who saw their duty and performed it in face of some adverse criticism from taxpayers, men who had appreciated the educational needs of the town and had given the town this finished building which would always be a credit to them.

Dr. N. C. Schaeffer State Superintendent of Public Instruction, was introduced by Dr. Billheimer at the conclusion of his address. Dr. Schaeffer said it had been thirteen years since he was last here at the dedication of Meade School building. That one of the great problems of all school directors was how to keep pace with the requirements for High School education. He referred to the criticism often heard of our educational system but a recent event proved it was more efficient and productive of better results than the education of 50 years ago. In Springfield Mass., a set of questions and answers of a school of 50 years ago was found and given to schools of like grade and the answers of to-day were better with fewer mistakes. Truth is the end of all education he said. There was a difference between knowledge and truth. Truth sinks deeper into the mind and recesses of the heart shaping life. Dr. Schaeffer referred to the pessimism of the day predicting so many years until the exhaustion of wood and coal mines but this should stimulate toward the great discoveries of science yet to be made, how to store sunshine, to warm the world during the following winter and use it for power and many other purposes. The waste of brains is the greatest of American wastes and the greatest thing the teacher can do is to touch with fire the mind of the young so they go forth to search for truth. More important than scientific truth, however, is true men and true women. Men who will be true workmen, who will work for the sake of the very perfection to be found in that work. The young should be taught that to deceive teacher, parent, or his fellowmen, does more harm, sometimes the only harm done is to the one trying to deceive. It reacts, hurts development and mastery. That to win one must be false to oneself that he can not be false to others. Money was well spent in high school buildings to develop better men and better women.

The exercises closed with the benediction by Dr. J. A. Singmaster.

Pavement Improvements.

Wm. H. Johns has made on Steinwehr avenue and the Emmitsburg road one of the finest public improvements of the year. Beginning at the Young stone house on west side of the road he has constructed a cement walk to his home, a distance of thirteen hundred feet of the best kind of pavement. He has also built cement walks around his house. This new walk was a promenade ground on Sunday afternoon and will not only be used by all living in that part of the town but by those who enjoy walking. Mr. Johns is entitled to much credit for this decided public improvement and should have many imitations throughout this place.

There are pavements on our most public thoroughfares that instead of being conveniences are inconveniences, full of ridges and bumps and in wet weather one succession of pools of water. These pavements should be rebuilt at once and of cement. The Compiler believes in a public expenditure that will build pavements without any prodding by a Town Council and it is hoped that this town will see much evidence of such public expenditures this year. The cement pavement is neither troublesome or costly to build as it was several years ago when a foundation of about two feet was excavated.

In pavement improvement let the County Commissioners at the Court House on Baltimore and Middle street and the Town Council in the Square lead the way, make these pavements of cement and encourage the citizens to continue this much needed public improvement.

Pavements, Trees and Lights.

The Town Council held a session on Tuesday evening of last week for the purpose of considering several subjects which had been postponed from regular meeting of previous week.

C. Wm. Beales asked to be allowed to construct at his residence on Carlisle St. a six foot concrete pavement and a concrete gutter and curb with a space between curb and pavement of two feet to be a grass plot. This space is now occupied by large trees and not used for walking. This request brought out an extended discussion of pavements and trees. The roots of trees were declared to be responsible for raising pavements and making them uneven so that only the central part of a pavement was good to walk on and that no more of a pavement was used by the public than proposed to be made by Mr. Beales. The condition of trees and the shape they put pavements in was criticised, that there were places on Carlisle street where the trees were too close that the trees were allowed to grow without trimming, preventing circulation of air and distribution of light. That there were places where trees could be removed without loss of shade, and that two trees well trimmed upward could be made to give much better service than three trees crowded together as is the case at a number of places.

The request of Mr. Beales was not acted on, as the borough ordinance did not provide for the pavement asked for and it would be necessary to reconstruct the pavement ordinance in order to grant his request. This is the course likely to be followed by Council.

The Council located the arc and Tungsten electric lights. Under the new contract with Keystone Light Company. The arc lights were retained largely as at present and the Tungsten lights were placed at the outskirts of the town with three lights to a square, and then the town as plotted for light purposes was referred to the Light Committee for action.

Martin Winter appeared before the Council, explaining the addition to the borough he proposed on the north side of the town and the extension of the sewer system on Broadway that would be involved. Council took no action in the matter.

High-Handed Outrage
A high-handed outrage was perpetrated at the home of Solomon Swartz, near Swartz's school-house, Conewago Township, Adams County recently. It is alleged that two men, with a horse and wagon, drove to Mr. Swartz's house for the purpose of "purchasing" antique articles. Contrary to the wishes of Mr. and Mrs. Swartz, who are aged and feeble, these men went through the house in quest of something that would please them. An old relic of the Swartz family in the shape of a tea-pot, which had been in the family for many years, seemed to "attract" their desire. Mr. Swartz told the intruders that it was not for sale. The strangers persisted in "appropriating" the tea pot, leaving a dollar and saying it would be returned. The tea pot was a relic in the Swartz family perhaps for a hundred years, and its loss is greatly regretted by the family. The fellows who thus intruded on these aged people are unknown to them.

The Paradise Rectory.
The Paradise Rectory, now being erected at Paradise, a mile and a half northwest of Abbotstown, is progressing rapidly as the material can be obtained. The foundation was completed some time ago, and work has been resumed by Coulson Brothers, contractors, of Hanover. When finished the building will be the largest of the kind in Southern Pennsylvania—having a frontage of 160 feet and will be 68 feet deep, connected with a chapel in the center. It will be built of brick, trimmed with brown stone from the quarries at Hummelstown, Dauphin County, Pa. The contractors will complete the building by January 1, 1910, as specified in the contract. The location of the institution is an excellent one, on an estate containing 300 acres of land. Every modern convenience will be provided. A stream of water runs through the property, and a large woods is not far from the buildings. It will have every advantage for educational purposes, recreation and giving the boys an excellent opportunity to grow up and be good and useful men.

Attempted Highway Robbery.
A bold attempt was made on Saturday, May 8, to rob Amos Weisensale who keeps a grocery store at Midway. About 11.40 p. m. Mr. Weisensale closed his store and proceeded to the street to go home, when he was attacked by two young men who attempted to overpower and rob him, one of the fellows grabbing him by the throat and choking him. In the struggle, considerable noise was made, which was heard by Thomas Smith, a visitor at the home of a neighbor, who chanced to be passing at the time. Realizing the situation, Mr. Smith came to the assistance of Mr. Weisensale, when the would-be robbers beat a hasty retreat down an alley. An effort is being made to capture the footpads. At the hour indicated Mr. Weisensale usually closes his store and puts the day's receipts in his home adjoining the store. About 11 o'clock Mrs. Weisensale went to her home with the proceeds of that day. The supposition is that the scoundrels were under the impression that Mr. Weisensale was in possession of the money realized during the day and had planned to rob him. The timely assistance of Mr. Smith frustrated their designs.

Remedies are Needed

Were we perfect, which we are not, medicines would not often be needed. But since our systems have become weakened, impaired and broken down through indiscretions which have gone on from the early ages, through countless generations, remedies are needed to aid Nature in correcting our inherited and otherwise acquired weaknesses. To reach the seat of stomach weakness and consequent digestive troubles, there is nothing so good as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, a glyceric compound, extracted from native medicinal roots—sold for over forty years with great satisfaction to all users. For Weak Stomach, Biliousness, Liver Complaint, Pain in the Stomach after eating, Heartburn, Bad Breath, Belching of food, Chronic Diarrhea and other Intestinal Derangements, the "Discovery" is a time-proven and most efficient remedy.

The genuine has on its outside wrapper the Signature You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this non-alcoholic, medicine of known composition, not even though the urgent dealer may thereby make a little bigger profit.
Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules, easy to take as candy.

ASK THE PROF. QUESTIONS.

What to do to Prevent Damage to Clothing from Moths.

Any of the readers of this paper desiring information in regard to the enemies and diseases of fruit trees, or other plants of the garden and farm, should write at once to Prof. H. A. Surface, State Zoologist, Harrisburg, Pa., who takes pleasure in answering questions on such matters.

Professor Surface is daily in receipt of letters from all over the State, which cover a wide range of subjects, from spraying for the destruction of San Jose scale and oyster shell bark louse to the ridding of cellars of rats and mice. A case in point may be mentioned:

A physician wrote to inquire "whether or not camphor is the best preventive of moths in cases containing clothing." As this is the season of the year when winter clothing is being put away until needed again, and housekeepers want to know how to keep the moths from destroying the same, the Professor's answer is appropos. He replied as follows:

"As a preventive of moths in cases containing clothing, there is nothing like making the cases in which they are packed so tight that the moth can not enter to lay her eggs, from which eggs the larvae come. I prefer naphthaline balls to camphor, but if the garments are wrapped in newspapers and put into a protected case and this sealed with strips of paper pasted over the cracks at every possible point of entry, to keep out the moths, there will be no danger of the moths developing. Camphor or naphthaline balls can be used in the packages also, but these alone will not prevent the occurrence of the moths, nor destroy the moth larvae after they have entered. The chief point in protecting fabrics from destruction by moths is to keep them in a vessel where the little winged moth can not enter to lay its eggs. An aid to this is the use of some substance like the balls above mentioned, which act as a repellent. After the clothing is attacked destroy the pests at once by fumigating with bisulfid of carbon."

The State Zoologist of Pennsylvania recommends one pound of this liquid to each 100 cubic feet of space, either sprinkled on cloth or poured into shallow vessels placed on it.

Mrs. Sarah Hamilton, 60 Breckenridge St., Gettysburg, Pa., says: "I endured much misery from disordered kidneys for a long time and was unable to find anything that would give me relief. I was very nervous, suffered from headaches and at times had sharp, shooting pains throughout my body. The passages of the kidney secretions were also very irregular. When I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, I procured a box at the People's drug store and used them. I improved from the first and am today in better health than before in years. I give Doan's Kidney Pills my heartiest endorsement."

Broke Arm in Fall from Tree

Earl, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Treiber of New Oxford, in company with several companions had gone out to the college grove last week, when Earl decided to show his skill at tree climbing, and had ascended an oak to the height of about 12 feet, when he caught hold of a dead limb which gave way and he fell to the ground, breaking both bones of his right forearm at two places—close to the wrist and near the elbow. The breaks were very bad ones, the bones protruding through the flesh. The boy walked to his home where a local physician adjusted the injury. Later he dislocated the adjustment, and he was obliged to go through the painful operation of readjustment.

Since starting in the piano business, in a small way years ago, we have always handled none but thoroughly reliable makes, and selling pianos at as low a figure as is consistent with good material and workmanship has enabled us to build up the largest piano business in the country.

The prices are well established, for all our pianos are marked in plain figures and have been sold in this vicinity for years at prices marked. We carry the largest stock of Pianos between New York and Chicago. Over five hundred instruments, one hundred and twenty-five styles, consisting of twenty-five high grade makes, which stock comprises the following reputable pianos Fate and Mrs. Bayard.

By LULU JOHNSON.

Copyrighted, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.

"You may come in," called Ethel, glancing approvingly the tall, well proportioned figure in the doorway. "I'm hiding," she explained as Chisholm came forward. "I'm hiding from a man."

"Remarkable!" was Chisholm's quiet comment as he dropped into a chair opposite the settee on which Miss Sprague sat. "I have come here to hide from a woman—a woman I never met."

Ethel clapped her hands. "Wouldn't it be funny if it happened that you were running away from me and I were running away from you and we both should be hiding here together—from each other?"

"More than likely we are the victims of Mrs. Bayard's well intentioned efforts," asserted Chisholm. "It is odd that after dodging Mrs. Bayard we should find ourselves in the same retreat with the common aim of avoiding each other."

"If you should tell me your name," suggested Ethel, "we could find out if we really are the only two victims of Mrs. Bayard's matchmaking craze."

"And rob the situation of its piquancy!" objected Chisholm. "No, Miss—Miss—Miss Dimples. I think we will enjoy a chat far more, because we are not absolutely certain that presently we will emerge from our retreat only to be pounced upon by the energetic Mrs. Bayard, thereupon to be introduced to each other while the world —our little world—looks on and smiles its commiseration."

"Mrs. Bayard means well," declared Ethel, "but it is dreadful the way she goes around introducing people with a look that says, 'Now I have introduced you young people I shall expect you to be married immediately, because you are perfectly suited to each other.' Every one finds such amusement in Mrs. Bayard's matchmaking that her victims are marked persons, so they come to hate each other."

"If she were content with mere hints it would not be so bad," continued Chisholm comfortably, "but she had me over here this morning to tell me that tonight I should meet my fate."

"And she wrote me," explained Ethel. "It seems that she has three sets of victims here tonight, so as soon as I came I made straight for this flirtation nook. Mrs. Bayard believes in flirtation booths to further her amiable ends, and it seemed a clever bit of satire to take refuge in one of her matrimonial traps."

"I felt much the same way," assented Chisholm. "Of course some time in the course of the evening I shall have to undergo the ordeal, but I am trying to defer her introduction until the last moment."

"This is the first time that I ever have been warned that I must marry, whether or no, and—well, I don't suppose that it would sound right to say that I am bashful, but I don't seem to fancy the idea."

"Which is ungrateful when Mrs.
Bayard goes to such trouble on our account," reminded Ethel. "She gives three or four balls a year just to 'bring people together,' as she expresses it."

"Just as though the people would not find each other if let alone!" commented Chisholm, with a laugh. "Now, I can imagine that in happier circumstances I might!"

"What?" demanded Ethel as Chisholm paused.

"I was going to say," he concluded, "that left to myself I might perhaps have carried out Mrs. Bayard's wishes through natural impulse and not through a sense of duty."

Ethel colored softly at the remark, for the meaning was not to be mistaken. Moreover, she suddenly regretted the matchmaking propensities of her hostess, which had resulted in prejudicing the mind of this new found acquaintance against her.

"I remember when I was a youngster in short trousers," reminisced Chisholm, "that one day my father mixed a pail of whitewash, placed a brush beside it and gave me strict orders not to whitewash the chicken coops because I did not have the requisite skill. Then he went downtown, and I took chances on a thrashing to prove that I could do it."

"We always want to do the forbidden things," assented Ethel. "I suppose we inherit the trait from our first parents."

"It's human nature," agreed Chisholm. "Now, if Mrs. Bayard had said, 'Above all things, keep away from Miss—er—Dimples,' I should have hunted up the introduction the very first thing instead of running off to hide."

"And then you make my acquaintance the very first thing, just the same."

"But we are not certain, you know," pleaded Chisholm eagerly. "You said yourself that there were four other victims."

"But of course we are one of the pairs," insisted Ethel.

"Perhaps not of the same pair. It may be that through some happy chance fate has been permitted to take a hand and do things right."

"If you would tell me who you are," suggested Ethel, "we could settle the matter."

"And spoil it all," reminded Chisholm.

"Then I shall tell you my name," declared Ethel firmly. "I am!"

"You are Miss Dimples—for just a little while," pleaded the man. "All too soon the awakening will come."

Let us enjoy these few minutes without the thought that fate and Mrs.
Bayard are centering in us a whole bunch of hateful to each other."

"If I am hateful!" suggested Ethel, rising.

"Don't be!" pleaded Chisholm. "I didn't mean it that way. You are not hateful. You are a most adorable and charming young woman. It is only as an inevitable thing that you could become—not hateful, but—"

"Irritating," suggested Ethel, resuming her seat. "I suppose that when we are introduced I shall feel the same way about you."

"Then you do not feel that way now?" he pressed.

"You are not hateful—yet," she conceded. "I think that I should like you if I were not certain that Mrs. Bayard is looking everywhere for us to give the detested introduction."

"Then don't let us be introduced," pleaded Chisholm. "I mean not by our hostess. We can get some one else to introduce us, and when Mrs. Bayard sees us talking together she will leave us alone."

"Perhaps that might be done," agreed Ethel thoughtfully. "The only trouble is that so few here know me.
It would be running a risk to go in search of an introducer."

"Then we might go and look for—the devil," he completed unexpectedly as the palms which screened the entrance parted and Mrs. Bayard swept in.

"There you are," she cried, shaking a plump, roguish forefinger at the pair.
Mrs. Bayard would insist on being kit-tenish in spite of 200 pounds of all too solid flesh. "I have been looking everywhere for you two," she added, and Chisholm groaned. Evidently they were one of Mrs. Bayard's "pairs."

"I think it's a shame," continued the good lady. "There are Mr. Wynne and Miss Maurer flirting desperately, and all the time I've been looking for you two to introduce you to them."

A gleam of interest shone in Chisholm's eyes.

"Dear Mrs. Bayard," he suggested, "don't you think that perhaps it would be well to let that infatuated couple alone and rest content with introducing us to each other?"

"Miss Sprague—Mr. Chisholm," repeated the hostess, adding, "I am sure that you will like Miss Maurer when you meet her, Mr. Chisholm."

"I am quite convinced of that," assented Chisholm calmly. "I am already very grateful to Miss Maurer for occupying Mr. Wynne's attentions."

There was no mistaking the meaning and the mastery in Chisholm's tones.
Mrs. Bayard turned and fled. Chisholm faced the blushing girl.

"Since it was fate and not Mrs. Bayard who took an interest in our affairs," he said significantly, "I—that is —there is a good half hour before the supper dance. Let's spend the time in getting better acquainted." And he sat down again, this time on the bench beside her.

His Lady's Tresses.

Sarah, the first Duchess of Marlborough, whose tempestuous character lacked many of the ordinary graces of womanliness, was yet sincerely loved by the two persons who knew her best —her husband, the Duke of Marlborough, and the "good" Queen Anne.
Among the many pictures which Mr.
Fitzgerald Molloy, the biographer of the duchess, incorporated in his "Life" is one which is not only lively, but charming:

On the death of the duke the duchess found in a cabinet where he kept all that he most valued a mass of her hair. Years before when he had thwarted her in something she resolved to mortify him, and, knowing that her beautiful and abundant hair was a source of pride and delight to him, she had it cut off.

The shorn tresses were left in a room through which the duke must pass and in a place where he must see them for whatever Marlborough's lady did she did thoroughly. But he came and went, saw and spoke to her and showed neither anger, sorrow nor surprise.

When he next quitted the house she ran to see her tresses, but they had disappeared, and on consulting her looking glass she saw how foolish a thing she had done. But she said nothing about her shorn locks, nor did the duke. She never knew what had become of them until after the death of the duke she found them among those things which he had held most precious.

How Oysters Drop Pearls.

"The pearl oyster gives its pearl to you as a pretty girl gives you her white hand," said a jeweler. "Did you think that, like an oyster opener in an eating bar, the fisher pried open the shell with a knife and went jabbing about in the soft flesh? Oh, no —nothing so unpoetical. The oyster opens its lips and silently lets drop its pearl."

"The oysters," he explained, "are brought in to port and are laid on sloping boards, mouths downward. A few inches below their mouths is water. In two or three days the oysters become dreadfully dry and thirsty.
The water tantalizes them. It increases their thirst. At last they open their shells, and if there are pearls within they roll forth and drop into the pans of water. That is how pearls are obtained. To open the oysters and search them is a useless task that is never thought of at the fisheries."

Too Much Equality.

"Why are you so vexed, Irma?"
"I am so exasperated! I attended the meeting of the Social Equality league, and my parlor maid presided and had the audacity to call me to order three times!"—Fliegende Blätter.

A New Feature

In the Installment

Building Lot Proposition....

By the additional payment of ten cents a week on a lot, the wife or estate of the purchaser is protected in the event of his death. Should death occur before all the payments are made, the unpaid debt is wiped out, the lot unencumbered passes to the wife or estate of the purchaser, and in addition there is paid in cash to the wife or estate, the difference between the amount of debt at time of death and $250.00. To illustrate—"A" buys a lot for $180.00—he pays on it $15.00 then dies—the wife or estate gets the lot clear of all debt and also gets in cash the sum of $85.00—being the difference between the debt on lot at time of death, and $250.00.
